Some people spend day after day worrying about money. Clutching their hair, they fret about how to pay for their child's new bike or this summer's trip to Branson.

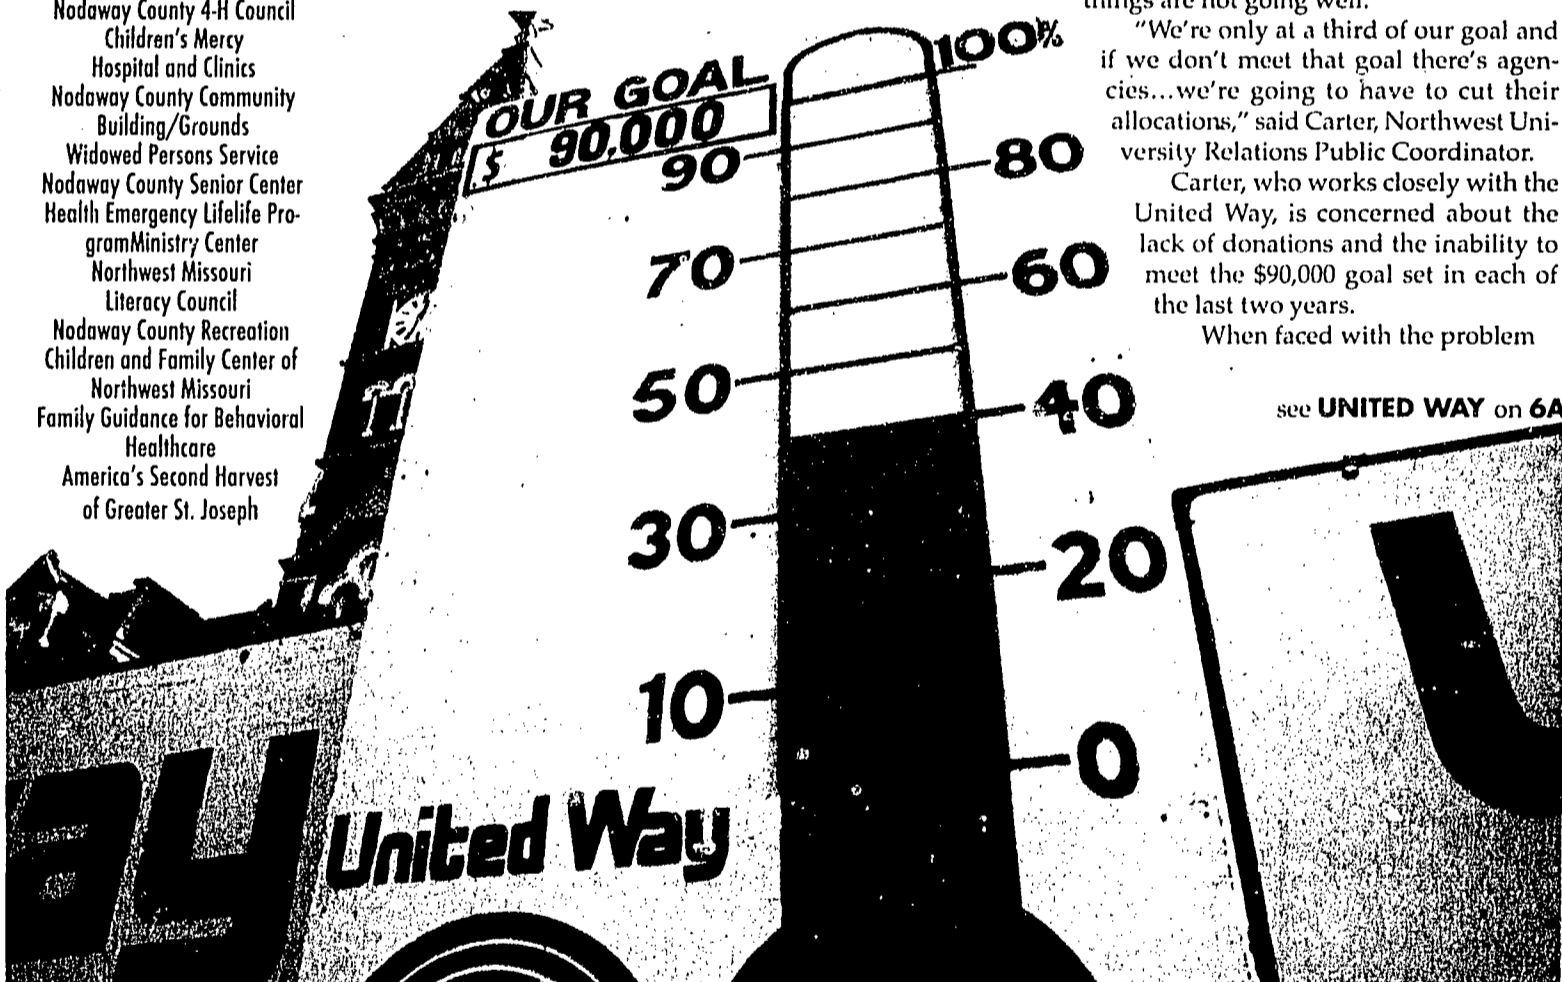

Teresa Carter worries, too. But she knows that if the United Way doesn't meet their goals for this year's fundraising campaign, people could be affected in a very serious way, and it could mean more than someone's new bike or a summer's vacation.

The Nodaway County United Way is in the tail end of its two-month fundraising campaign, and things are not going well.

"We're only at a third of our goal and if we don't meet that goal there's agencies...we're going to have to cut their allocations," said Carter, Northwest University Relations Public Coordinator.

Carter, who works closely with the United Way, is concerned about the lack of donations and the inability to meet the $90,000 goal set in each of the last two years.

Students compete for prizes at show

Music, poetry and laughter filled Mary Linn Auditorium last week as students competed to be the best.

During the Homecoming Variety Show Northwest students demonstrated their talents to friends, family and alumni. Some students acted, sung and danced their way to awards and prizes while others received the opportunity to entertain a large crowd of people.

This year, Phi Mu and Phi Mu Alpha's skit "The Ghost of Roberta" won the Highly Competitive Skits division and the People's choice award.

Chris Little from Phi Mu Alpha was voted Best Actor for his role as Campus Safety and Whitney Turner from Phi Mu was voted Best Actress for her role as the Roberta Ghost.

Brent Rice won first place for performing "Poetry Is" in the Olio Acts.

Phi Mu President Ashley Feekin is a proud supporter of the skit and everyone who was involved.

"The skit was well put together and everyone knew what they were doing. Everyone was excited to be out there," Feekin said.

Northwest Senior Megan Fuller liked the skits best because she knows the people in them. She also thinks the skits are more creative.

"There was more dancing and singing this year than there was last year," Fuller said.

Retired regent dies of cancer

A man with close leadership ties to Northwest lost his battle with cancer Tuesday morning.

Frank "Chip" Strong, 55, died on Oct. 24, at his Maryville home.

Strong, a Maryville attorney, was a member of the Northwest Foundation Inc. Board of Directors and a former member of the University's Board of Regents.

Appointed to the board in 1989, he served until 2001 and was the board's vice president from 1999 to 2001.

At the time his death, he was director and president of the law firm Strong & Strong, P.C., in Maryville.

In addition to his service to the Board of Regents and Northwest Foundation, Strong was a member and former vice president of the Maryville R-II School District Board of Education, local Lion's Club and Northwest Athletic Booster Club.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday, Oct. 27, at the First Christian Church of Maryville. Memorials in Strong's name may be made to the Northwest Foundation Inc., Office of University Advancement, Northwest Missouri State University, 800 University Drive, Maryville.

A Northwest student died at the University of Kansas Medical Center, Tuesday, Oct. 24.

Clint Johnson, 21, was a patient at the KU Medical Center for second and third degrees burns he received in a propane tank explosion on Sept. 26 at Shipps Grain Elevator on Highway H.

Johnson backed into and punctured a 6,000 gallon propane tank with a skid loader, the tank contained 4,000 gallons of propane. He was undergoing several skin graft surgeries.

Funeral arrangements will be posted by his sister, Andrea Johnson, on his Facebook account.

Northwest is hoping to get more by charging less.

The University's Board of Regents Friday approved a new, lower tuition rate for out-of-state graduate students enrolling in Northwest's graduate school and Outreach Education programs.

Select graduate students will see a nearly $200 decrease in tuition if they enroll in programs offered at Northwest's Maryville and Liberty, Mo. campuses, as well as those offered at Northwest's Joplin, Mo. Help local efforts assist others in need

Outside the Nodaway County Courthouse stands a sign reminding Maryville residents that an important local organization is desperately in need of help.

While the Nodaway County United Way inches a little closer to reaching its goal with every donated dollar, the United Way has failed to raise its $90,000 goal for the last two years.

The local United Way aids 16 non-profit organizations that provide assistance to children, families, seniors and those in crisis. Without the financial assistance of the United Way, these crucial social service programs and organizations would suffer greatly.

What better way to invest in something that makes a difference than an organization that helps fund programs locally?

Without the efforts of United Way your daughters and granddaughters wouldn't be able to be Daisies or Brownies in Girl Scouts, your grandparents wouldn't be able to enjoy hot meals at the Nodaway County Senior Center and children would have grumbling tummies without the food donations of America's Second Harvest of Greater St. Joseph.

With the United Way helping so many different organizations, nearly every person in Nodaway County or someone they know are affected by whether or not the United Way is alive and well.

This holiday season, instead of spending money on frivolous items, why not donate any extra money you might have to the United Way and help a great organization get back on its feet? Additionally, why not donate your time by volunteering at the organizations the United Way supports?

Help serve meals at the senior center. Mow the lawn or help baby sit the children at the Children and Family Center. Donate items to the Salvation Army. Visit America's Second Harvest and help box food items to be sent to hungry children.

It doesn't take much to lend a hand and give back to Nodaway county residents less fortunate than you.

Monetary donations can be sent to United Way of Nodaway County, P.O. Box 164, Maryville.

-GOVERNOR'S COLUMN

Supporting Missouri's future generations

Our children deserve the best we have to offer. As a father and as governor, it is my hope that our state can provide a solid foundation for our children to build a successful future. Missouri must ensure that our children receive a first class education and provide for their safety and well being.

Mark Blunt
Missouri Governor

I have focused on making education the state's top public policy and budget priority. I am pleased to report that the state has provided nearly a third of a billion dollars in increased funding for elementary and secondary education since 2005 and created a new school funding formula focused on students' needs. We are also working to provide students new tools for learning in math, engineering, technology and science to ensure that they are prepared to be active participants in the global economy.

Protecting our children's safety is critical to their success. Our state was among the first to implement a nationally connected communication system called the AMBER Alert Web Portal to ensure word can spread as quickly as possible when a child has been abducted. The system allows Missourians to receive alerts and status updates on e-mail, pagers or cell phones so they can help bring a missing child home. I recently signed an executive order mandating that all state employees with state cell phones and other wireless communication devices subscribe to receive AMBER Alert information through this system. You can sign up at Missouriamberalert.com. The abduction and safe return of baby Abigail Woods reminds us how critical this tool is to protect Missouri families.

As a state we have taken aggressive steps to keep dangerous sexual predators away from our children. Missouri now has a version of Jessica's Law to ensure sex offenders who prey on young victims stay in jail at least 30 years and are monitored their entire lives. I also signed a law that made Missouri one of the first states to utilize global positioning satellite (GPS) technology to track certain sex offenders. In addition, we have expanded the sexual offender registry and added new tools to make it a more powerful resource for parents.

Ensuring a solid foundation for our children's future and meeting their needs now is a responsibility that I take very seriously as Missouri works to support our future generations.

Old Wal-Mart site needs to be dealt with

After sitting dormant for many years, something has got to be done with the former Wal-Mart site. It has far surpassed the image of an eyesore and is now nothing more than depressing as it casts a shadow over the appearance of the business district.

Dominic Genelli
Community Editor

It's bad enough that restaurants, gas stations and lots sit empty within the district, but to have a site as large as the former Wal-Mart is completely ridiculous. There are 266 Wal-Mart buildings sitting empty in this country and it's a shame this city has to be included.

This building has been sitting empty for too long and by this point someone involved with the progression of Maryville should've done something by now.

Do any area leaders and officials realize how much business could come to town if something was done? So many things can be done with the site that the long trip to St. Joseph can be a thing of the past.

The building itself is large enough to be broken off into two or three places. Imagine driving down Main Street and making a stop at a big name department store or restaurant.

All it takes is meetings, letters; some type of communication just to let companies know that Maryville exists and business would benefit in town.

It wouldn't take much more than a day trip for Maryville city officials to take a quick drive to Jefferson City to meet with representatives and do some lobbying for Maryville.

Development from a local aspect is also beneficial.

While chatting with Campus Safety officer Kristina Hargin in line at Java City, she made an excellent suggestion to make the old Wal-Mart site the Nodaway County Fairgrounds.

Hargin said the building could be used as an exhibition hall for possible flea markets and other events.

I completely agree with Hargin. The site sits on 4.27 acres of land and the building size is 60,948 square feet. Not only could this area become the site of the county fair, but also the building itself could still become an exhibition hall with enough space leftover for other businesses.

To make a long story short, it would be in the best interest of this county and this city to work and give the Wal-Mart site life again.

More business means more jobs, which can lead to more citizens, ultimately leading to more growth.

On the other side of the coin, an improved city can benefit the University raising enrollment which also raises funding and support.

However, nothing will happen unless someone does something.

Leave the drinking for after parents leave

On Saturday during the parade, one couldn't tell if the Homecoming theme was "Bobby in the Big Apple" or "Bobby in the Bar."

Lindsay Jacobs
Chief Reporter

Walking down the sidewalks of the portion of the route that was off campus tons of people were carrying cases of beer and fifts of liquor. I have never seen so much alcohol and so many drunk people before 10 a.m. in my entire life.

Granted, this was Homecoming weekend, and it's all about a weekend of fun for college students there are sometimes when alcohol probably shouldn't be involved. The last time I checked the parade was supposed to be for the campus as well as the community, but this event turned in to a drunk fest where alcohol was everywhere a person looked.

I have nothing against drinking, however I do have a problem with people drinking excessively at an event where so many families are present.

Once the parade route was off campus it seemed a person couldn't walk a block without seeing alcohol everywhere. Students were standing around drinking while the parade wandered down the street. There would be a family huddled together on a blanket under an umbrella trying to enjoy the parade, and behind them would be drunken people.

I can't imagine what was going through parents' minds as they sat watching the parade with their children, and what the rest of the community was thinking as they were watching the parade and seeing students chug choice beverages.

It literally looked like a kegger with drunken students lining the street to watch the festivities, and some where in there families were mingled in

It's one thing to go out all Homecoming weekend, have fun with friends, enjoy nightly break fast drinking specials, but when it comes to events such as the parade the alcohol should be left at home.

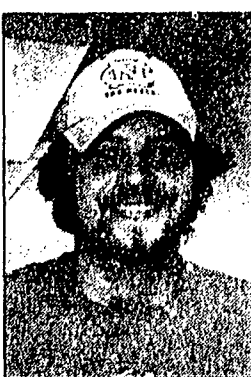

Families aren't at every event, so it shouldn't be hard for people to put the drinks down for awhile.

For next year's Homecoming, I challenge everyone to leave the alcohol at home during the family events. Show some respect to the area citizens and their families, they will be pleasantly surprised.

Save the hard core drinking for later when families are not around.

Adlnk granted scholarship fund

Lindsay Jacobs
Chief Reporter

A Northwest club just found another $1,000 in their general fund.

Nicholson Kovac, Inc. an integrated marketing communications agency in Kansas City recently donated $1,000 to Adlnk, the University's advertising club, and another $1,000 for a scholarship.

Sheree Johnson, senior vice president director of media at Nicholson Kovac Inc., said the donation and scholarship are in response to several Northwest alumni being hired by the agency and they have been impressed by how well alumni are trained.

Johnson said the agency wanted to offer support to future graduates, and they are helping the students in two ways, one being donating money to Adlnk, and the other being offering the scholarship to a student.

Jacquie Lamer, Adlnk adviser and mass communication instructor, said every spring Adlnk organizes an ad agency tour. A while ago the club contacted Nicholson Kovac, Inc. to see if they could get a tour. The group was put in touch with Brent Steffens, a Northwest alumni who works at the agency.

Steffens made sure the students got the tour that year, and has made sure the students have been offered a tour since then.

"He is just enthusiastic about getting Northwest students involved in advertising," Lamer said.

The media manager for the agency called Lamer about a year ago and told her he was impressed with the employees they hired from Northwest and wanted to know how they were educated. He and some co-workers came to Northwest to talk with students.

About this time Adlnk was planning on seeking corporate donations. The president of Adlnk last year gathered some members to make a presentation at the agency and asked for sponsorship. The agency agreed.

Lamer said right now the club is thinking of ways they can use the money. Lamer said one possible way of using the money would be helping pay for trips to conferences.

Adlnk is subsidizing a bus attending the Kansas City Ad Club Career Day on Nov. 10. Lamer said she thinks it's the fifth year Adlnk has helped pay for a bus.

Applications for the $1,000 scholarship are available in mass communication department's Secretary Maria McCrary's office or online on the Adlnk's Web site on Googlepages.com. The scholarship will be applied to the Spring 2007 semester.

Applicants must be majoring in advertising, interactive digital media, marketing, journalism and public relations, be a full time student and have earned 60 credit hours when applications are submitted. A letter of recommendation, an essay and a resume must also be submitted.

Applications must be turned in by noon Friday, Nov. 10 to McCrary. The winner of the scholarship will be announced in January at the Adlnk meeting.

Lamer said she hopes the group will receive money annually, but they are not going to assume anything.

"I don't think we're sitting back and assuming it's going to be annual," Lamer said. "We want to not take it for granted."

Mallory Parker, Adlnk's publicity chair, said the next Adlnk meeting will be Nov. 16 at 4:30 p.m. in the Station, and for further information people can check the group's Facebook group.

UNITED WAY: Agency struggles to make ends meet

of insufficient donations they must dip into a savings account in order to meet the needs of the 16 different organizations they support, but Carter explained that she could only go to that well so many times before it's dry.

So what do they do? In an effort to garner more donations the United Way has extended their fundraising campaign, which began in September, to include the first two weeks of November.

According to Unitedway.org, the United Way is thriving nationally, raising $3.98 million in '05-'06, increasing 2.9 percent from the previous year. That success hasn't trickled down, however, and Carter believes that a lack of knowledge is to blame.

"That's the problem. A lot of people don't know about United Way and how it operates," Carter said.

Muriel Zimmerman, administrator at the Children and Family Center of Northwest Missouri, a beneficiary of the United Way, offered another theory.

"As other service organizations and other projects develop around the community the pie is only so big, and people are only going to give so much," Zimmerman said. The Children and Family Center provides aid for victims of domestic abuse and sexual assault, and Zimmerman counts on help from the United Way for different projects.

"We've asked for different things different years. One year it was just to help us pay our bills, we're getting started we don't have anything to pay our utility bills. We need help just keeping the shelter doors open," Zimmerman said.

This year she plans on finishing a project started last year with donations from the United Way.

Last year, the Children and Family Center built a privacy fence for their clients, and now they're hoping to expand it, making it into a play area for their child clients.

The Nodaway County Senior Center is counting on that money too. They use the donations from the United Way to provide meals for senior citizens throughout the county. Without the money from United Way, they wouldn't be able to pay drivers to deliver meals to people in the surrounding communities.

If the Nodaway County United Way doesn't come nearer to their goal, many organizations of Maryville and the surrounding areas will suffer, and Carter and Zimmerman will spend their days with thoughts of money on their minds.

To donate to the United Way call (660) 568-3910, or send your donations directly to P.O. Box 164, Maryville.

TSS-like syndrome kills student

Lindsay Jacobs
Chief Reporter

She is remembered as an enjoyable and cheery person, and according to a friend no matter what the topic, conversations would end in laughter.

Last week, autopsy results revealed Northwest student Claire McKinney died of toxic shock syndrome caused by streptococcal bacteria.

McKinney died Oct. 8 in Shenandoah, Iowa. Toxic Shock Syndrome (TSS) is caused by one of two types of bacteria, strep and staph. Jerry Wilmes, vice president of student affairs and director of the Health Center, said these types of bacteria are present at all times, but no one knows why they cause infection in only some people. Since he is not familiar with this case, Wilmes could not comment on any specifics of it.

"This is a really rare and unusual syndrome," Wilmes said. Some possible causes of TSS include, but are not limited to, history of childbirth or abortion, surgical wounds, use of super-absorbent tampons, use of diaphragm or contraceptive sponge and local infection in the skin or deep tissue, according to the Ohio State University Medical Center Web site. TSS caused by staph was found in the 1970s and 80s when women used highly absorbent tampons during menstruation.

Since then, manufacturing changes have been made and the number of TSS cases caused by tampons has decreased. TSS caused by strep is seen mostly in children and the elderly. Other groups at risk include, but are not limited to people who have heart disease, chronic lung disease and HIV according to the Ohio State University Medical Center's Web site.

Wilmes said in a "significant percentage" of cases the source of the bacteria's entry cannot be identified. There is no sign it's contagious or has anything to do with geographic location.

Some symptoms of Staph TSS include fever higher than 102 degrees, chills, headache, diarrhea, vomiting, muscle pain, increased blood flow to eyes, mouth and vagina making them appear red, fatigue and one or two weeks after other symptoms appear skin shed on the hands and feet.

A few symptoms of Strep TSS include shock, low blood pressure, difficulty breathing, decreased kidney function and in some cases skin shedding on the palms of hands and soles of feet.

In both types a red rash appears, and covers most of the body. The Ohio State University Medical Center Website lists ways to prevent toxic shock syndrome includes conscientious wound care, minimal use of diaphragms, sponges and tampons and females who have had TSS should avoid tampons because re-infection is common.

Wilmes said to help prevent any infection, it's important to get plenty of rest, have a good diet, managing stress, practicing cough etiquette, getting plenty of exercise and frequently washing hands.

Freshman Stacey Herzog was a friend of Claire's. She said she will miss the conversations that always wound up in laughter and random road trips the girls partook in. "She was a really fun, upbeat person to be around," Herzog said.

The hosts of the variety show were Northwest students Aaron Rice, Sarah Smith and Stephanie Trester.

Different name, different team

Central Missouri football team falling on hard times

Jerome Boettcher
Sports Editor

The University of Central Missouri might want to consider changing their name back.

Well, at least for the football team. Central Missouri (formerly known as Central Missouri State University until a month ago) has struggled this year and for a team that usually contends for the MIAA Championship, they are approaching five losses on the season—something they haven't done since 1997.

But in coach Mel Tjeerdma's case, that doesn't matter to his 8-0, No. 2 Northwest football team who plays against UCM (6-4, 4-4 MIAA) at 1:30 p.m., Saturday, in Warrensburg.

"They're a very good team," Tjeerdma said. "We're going to have to go there and play well. We can't go there and expect to just slop through it, because that won't happen, we'll get beat if we do that."

UCM comes off a 31-26 loss to Missouri Southern and lost earlier in the season to Truman State—teams that both in the past have dangled near the bottom of the conference.

Currently four teams have records of 4-4 in the conference and Northwest and Missouri Western are the only two teams that have beaten anyone with an above .500 record.

That fact begs the question, is the MIAA going through a down year?

"I think our league's pretty good," Tjeerdma said. "I think maybe the balance in our league is probably more balance than we've seen. I think Truman and Missouri Southern have been two teams that have beaten teams that prior to the start of the season you would say 'well they're not going to beat any of those teams,' and they have...I don't think it's the fact that our league is down."

Northwest nose tackle Kyle Kaiser agrees with Tjeerdma, adding that the lower teams in the past are finally starting to turn around.

"I don't think it's a down year, I just think there's a lot of teams that have been having down years in the past are catching up with everybody else," Kaiser said. "Everybody's evening out really in our conference. I don't think that's becoming a down year, I think it's just a lot better athletes and a lot better teams in this conference now."

BRINGING IT ON

Cal Arnold
Assistant Sports Editor

Standing in the freezing rain at a football game could take the spirit out of anyone.

Anyone, that is, except the Northwest cheerleaders.

To them the most important job of all is to keep the Bearcat fans on their toes, no matter what the weather is like. That's what they do every Saturday afternoon starting in late August each year.

However, that's only part of the job. Another big priority for the squad is reaching national competition. Perhaps the biggest task facing the squad this year is adapting to yet another new coach. The last five years have been tough, having a different coach every year. Jason Sack replaced Jeremiah Lawson, last year's coach, in the spring.

Chris Mommens, in his fourth year on the squad, said the yearly change has put a damper on the program.

"The last two coaches knew they were only going to be here for a year, so they didn't put a lot of effort into the program," Mommens said. "Coach Sack, now, he's dedicated. He's planning on being here for at least four years and I've seen more effort out of him so far this year than I saw out of our last two coaches. So that really makes me look forward to see what the program's going to do in the future."

Sack spent the last five years at Avila University in Kansas City where he coached the cheerleading squad to three consecutive Universal Cheerleading Association (UCA) College Cheerleading National All-Girl Division II top-10 finishes. In 2003 he was named the Heart of America Conference Spirit Squad Coach of the Year.

With his 2006-2007 squad already chosen by Lawson during spring tryouts, Sack had to contact the individuals after arriving at Northwest. After finalizing a few roster problems, the team was able to get together to meet the new coach.

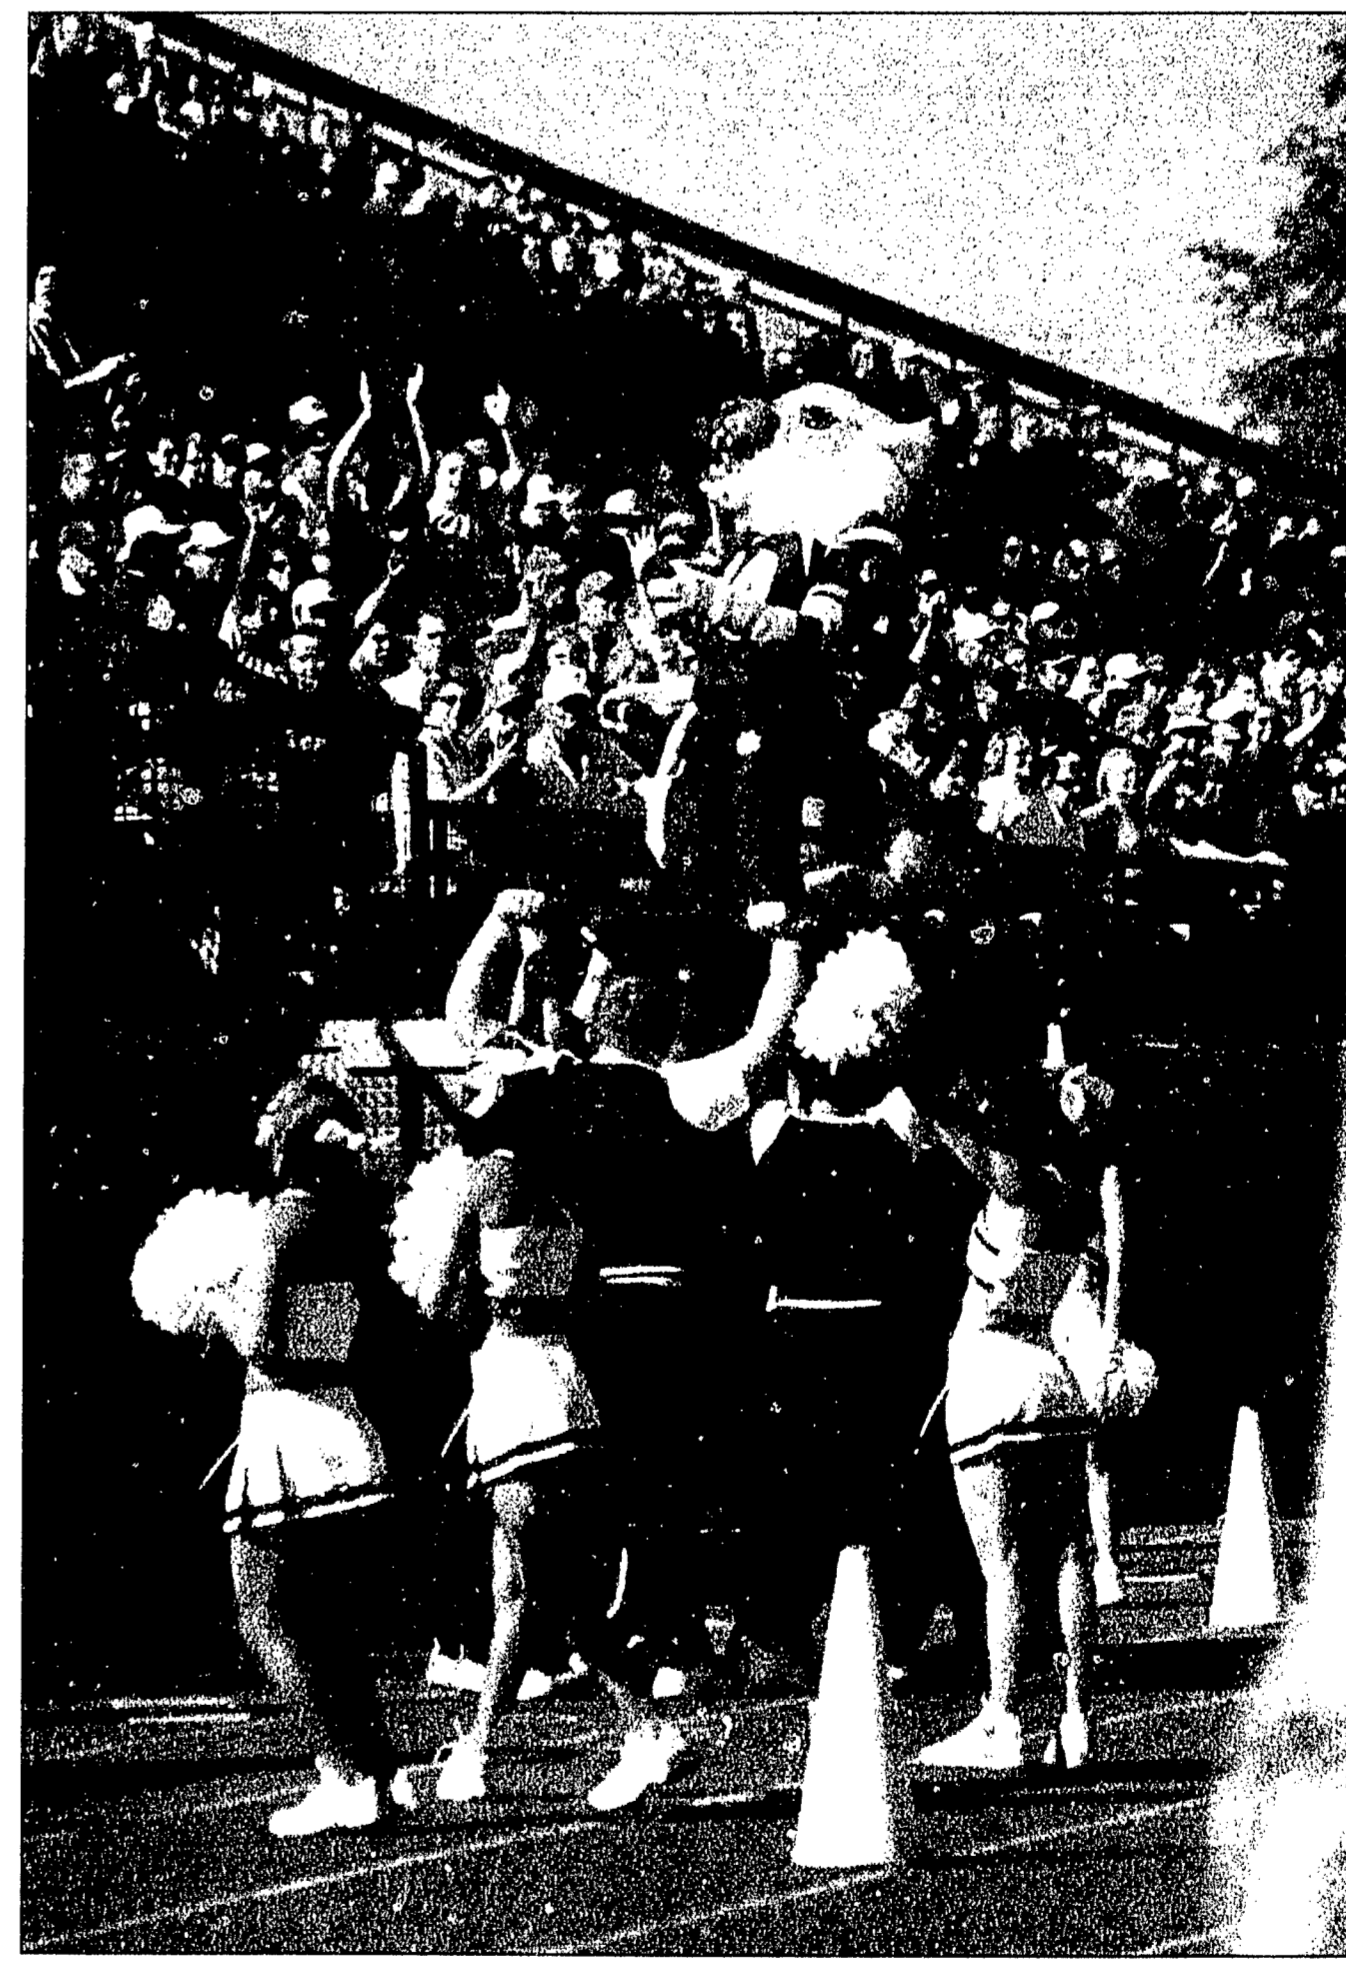

While adapting to a new coach can be difficult, there is much more to being a college cheerleader. Practices three days a week include stunts, pyramids, tumbling and basket tosses, as well as learning cheers to perform at games. Weight lifting is also done four days a week. Game days during the fall include stretching, performing for alumni and performing at football games.

Sophomore Audrey Strothkamp said getting used to having a partner to stunt with is a tough thing to do.

"No guy is alike," Strothkamp said. "You have to know who has what timing and of course you have some partners you stunt better with. Your chemistry matters a lot and depends on how successful you are. Once you're comfortable you pretty much work really well together."

Cheering at Bearcat football and basketball games is the first priority for the squad, but the year is also spent training for nationals.

'Hounds face a must-win

The Maryville High School Spoofhound football team is not officially out of the playoff race, but a familiar foe gave them a fighting chance.

While Maryville lost to Lawson, 15-7, at the 'Hound Pound Friday night, Bishop LeBlond defeated Plattsburg, Maryville's next opponent, 28-7. Both Maryville and Plattsburg face a must-win Friday night.

'Cats drop last 2 road matches

Jared Verner

The most successful soccer team in Northwest history received a pair of setbacks going into the final weekend of play.

The Bearcat soccer team went winless in the final two road matches of 2006. Northwest fell 4-1 to Southwest Baptist last Saturday, and got shutout 3-0 at No. 24 Missouri Southern the next day.

"We gave up easy goals," Northwest soccer head coach Tracy Cross said. "We did not block our opponents and made some mistakes, and we've been consistent in not making them this year."

Senior forward Kayla Griffin led the 'Cats with two shots against the Lions. The Lions scored twice in the first half and once in the second to end the 'Cats road schedule.

"We did not do well at all," said Griffin on the Southern match. "We weren't really playing together."

Junior defender Amy Jackson scored the lone goal last weekend on a penalty kick in the 55th minute against Southwest Baptist. Jackson's goal marked the third this

Defense leads way

Brett Barger
Assistant Sports Editor

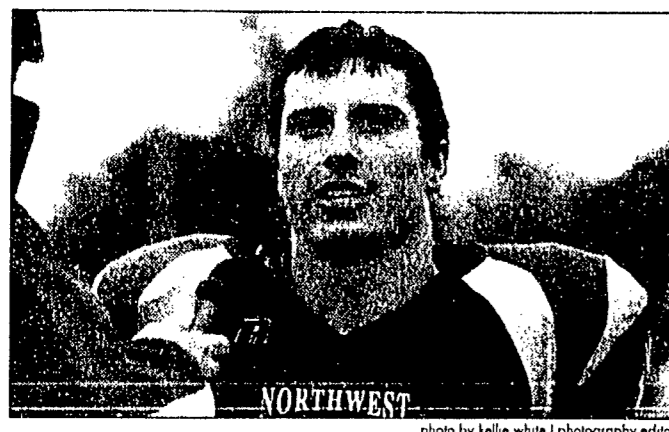

One could name a lot of great performances from Saturday's 59-0 victory over conference newcomer Fort Hays State.

However, a Maryville native led the way for the Bearcat defense in their largest shutout since 1938.

Myles Burnside, a red-shirt freshman strong safety, was named the Don Black Award winner as the MVP of the Homecoming game.

Burnside, filling in for the injured Chris Termini the last two games, finished with six tackles, including an interception that stopped a Fort Hays drive deep in their own territory.

Burnside said he was surprised that he won the award, which was given to a defensive player for just the fourth time since the 1990 season. Graduate assistant Chad Bostwick was the last defensive player to win the award, in 2003. Damienn Chumley (2002) and Dave Svehla (1990) were the other defensive players before Bostwick to win the award.

Strong Safety Myles Burnside speaks to a reporter after winning the Don Black Award. Burnside finished with six tackles and an interception in Northwest's 59-0 victory over Fort Hays State.

"I couldn't believe I actually got it when the offense put up 59 points," Burnside said. "Our defense, our whole team played well."

Northwest coach Mel Tjeerdsmas has commented throughout the season about the quality of depth on the defensive side of the football is, but noted how quickly Burnside has assimilated himself into the defensive scheme.

"Myles had a very good game last week," Tjeerdsmas said. "He's been playing really steady as a rotating player...we felt all along that he was going to be a very good football player for us."

Against Missouri Southern on Sept. 30, Burnside had two tackles and an interception. Starting at strong safety last week at Washburn, Burnside was third in tackles with five.

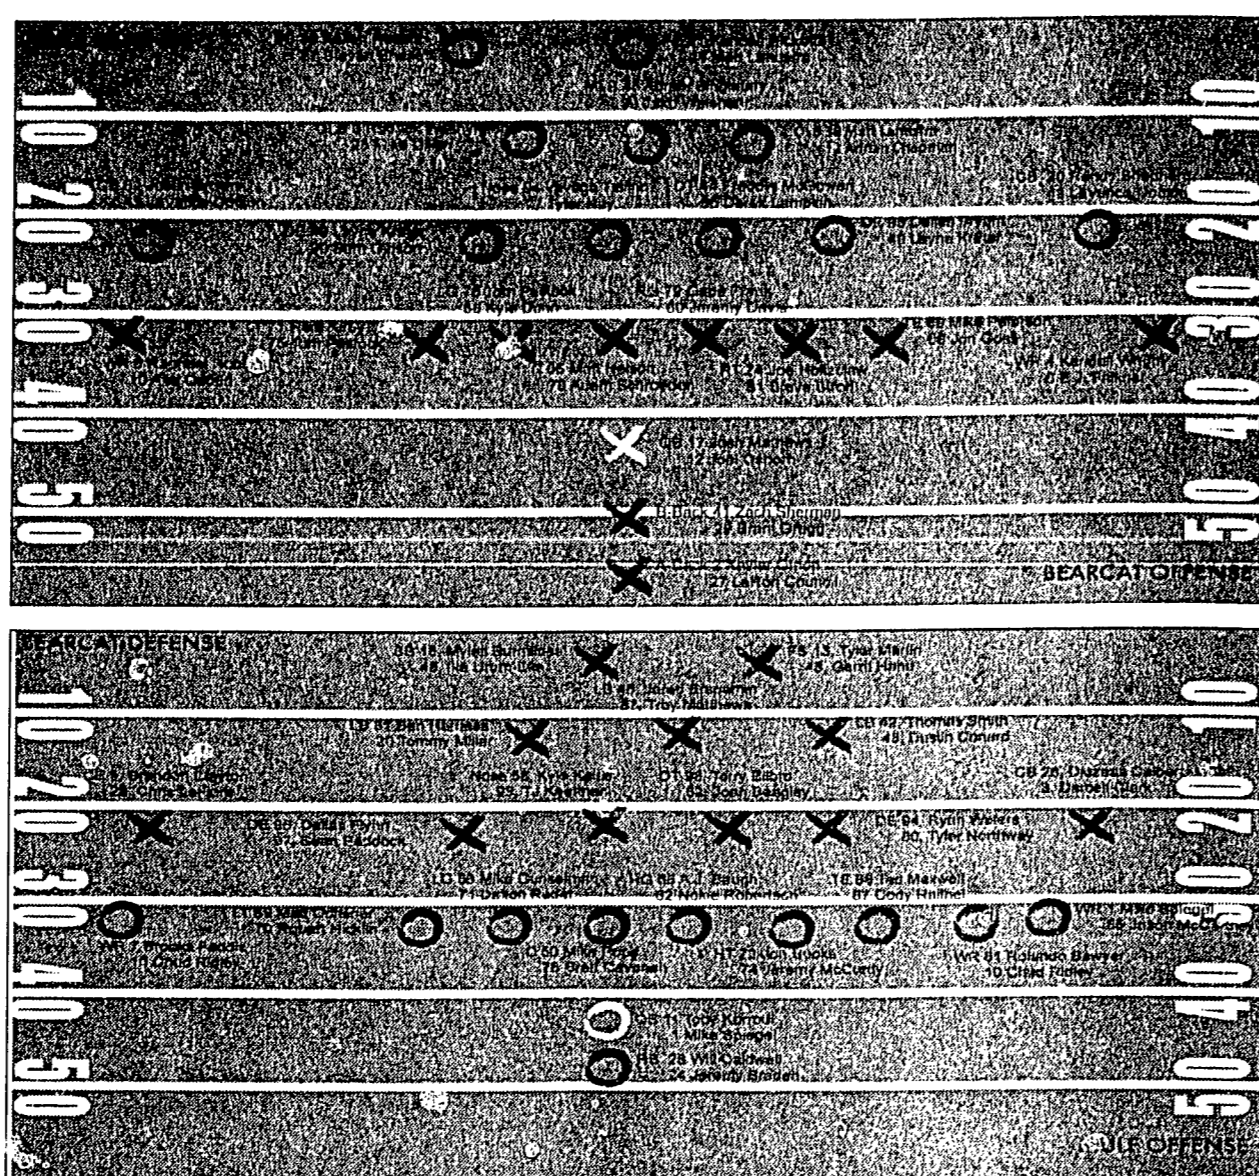

As a whole, the defense held Fort Hays to 155 yards of total offense. The Bearcat defense gave Tiger quarterback Dallas Drew fits all day. Drew completed 6 of 20 passes for 49 yards with an interception.

The Fort Hays' running attack, which entered Saturday's game averaging just over 130 yards per game, managed only 76 yards on 35 carries. The Tigers only red-zone appearance of the game was stopped on fourth down.

"We're a great defensive team... we've played well all year," Tjeerdsmas said. "I probably would have been disappointed if an offensive guy would have won it (Don Black Award), just because of that."

BRINGING IT: Cheerleaders gear up for nationals

In previous years they have traveled to Daytona, Fla., to spend a week in competition, and this year they will go to Orlando, Fla., for a four-day competition. The main priority, however, is cheering on the 'Cats, which includes all home basketball games in Bearcat Arena.

"These kids are here because they want to cheer at Northwest," Sack said. "Nationals is the bonus. Our primary goal is out there on the field and in the arena supporting the team."

The squad is currently working on a tape to send to Memphis and the national office. They must prepare a cheer that demonstrates all the skills and will find out Nov. 3 how they qualify against other Division II schools around the country. Ironically, MIAA opponent Pittsburg State will more than likely be the toughest opponent in the area, according to Sack.

"Nationals is crazy," Strothkamp said. "It's a lot of hard work...you work your butt off trying to get everything perfect. Everybody has to work together."

Even with the work involved, Mommens said the energetic crowds and camaraderie among his teammates is worth all of the time involved. With the workouts and major competition, he knows cheerleading isn't the same as football or volleyball, but said it isn't completely different either.

"We are athletes because we go through such physical and mental training just like any other football, basketball (athlete) does," Mommens said. "We're not an athletic squad, but we are athletes just because of the intense regimen that we go through."

Northwest nearly had Central beat in the second game. With the 'Cats and Jennies tied at 29-29, Andrea Robertson had two consecutive kills to give Central the win. Freshman Priscilla Bremer led with six kills, along with 20 assists from Hankins.

"We had a game point opportunity and just didn't capitalize on it," Tool said. "It just proves to you how much, when you have that chance, you can't let it slip away."

Coming out of the half, the 'Cats took it to the Jennies for a 30-17 win in the third game. Northwest also posted their highest attack percentage of the night with a .405 mark.

The 'Cats then went from their highest attack percentage to their lowest percentage in the fourth game. After falling 30-21, they finished the fourth game with a .019 attack percentage.

"I think our ball control wasn't as strong as it could have been," Hankins said.

The 'Cats travel to Missouri Western at 7 p.m. Friday for a rematch against the Griffons. Tool said the win against Rockhurst will be a great lead-up for the match.

"We'll have to play hard Friday because they'll (Western) have a lot of confidence going in," Tool said. "We'll have to keep the same mentality (as they had against Rockhurst)."

Northwest takes on No. 1 Truman State at 2 p.m. Saturday in Kirksville, with MIAA quarterfinals starting Tuesday at a site to be determined after next week's games.

The conference was split this season into east and west divisions with the addition of Fort Hays State. Northwest is a member of the east division.

Stepping up

Call Arnold, Brett Barger

With every step back, it seems as though the Northwest volleyball team takes two steps forward.

After losing to No. 11 Central Missouri in four games in Bearcat Arena on Saturday, the Bearcats notched a five-game road victory over No. 17 Rockhurst Tuesday in Kansas City. The win put Northwest at 14-16 overall while they stayed at 4-7 in the MIAA.

"It was just a great match," head coach Anna Tool said. "We had great ball control and they (Rockhurst) just couldn't defend it."

After dropping game one 20-30, Northwest came back to take the second game 30-23. A close losing game three (28-30) was followed by two wins for the 'Cats (30-23, 18-16) to take the match win.

Four Northwest players tallied double-digit kills, led by seniors Mackenzie Heston with 22 and Sarah Trowbridge with 20. Senior Molly Hankins recorded 78 assists and Trowbridge also led the way in defensive digs with 24.

Amy Bohner led the team with six assisted blocks and one individual block while both Northwest and Rockhurst had 11 overall team blocks.

"Amy was blocking well," Tool said. "She disrupted everything they (Rockhurst) wanted to do."

After losing the first two games to Central Missouri Saturday, Northwest fell in game four, 30-21, for a 3-1 loss on senior night. The loss was the 14th consecutive against Central with the last win coming on Oct. 10, 1999.

"I think we did good things overall as a team," Trowbridge said. "We played really well, but we got to stick in with every point in every game."

In the first game with Northwest down 17-20, Central went on a 5-0 scoring run to put the game out of reach and won 30-24. Trowbridge led the team with 8 kills, while Hankins had 15 assists.

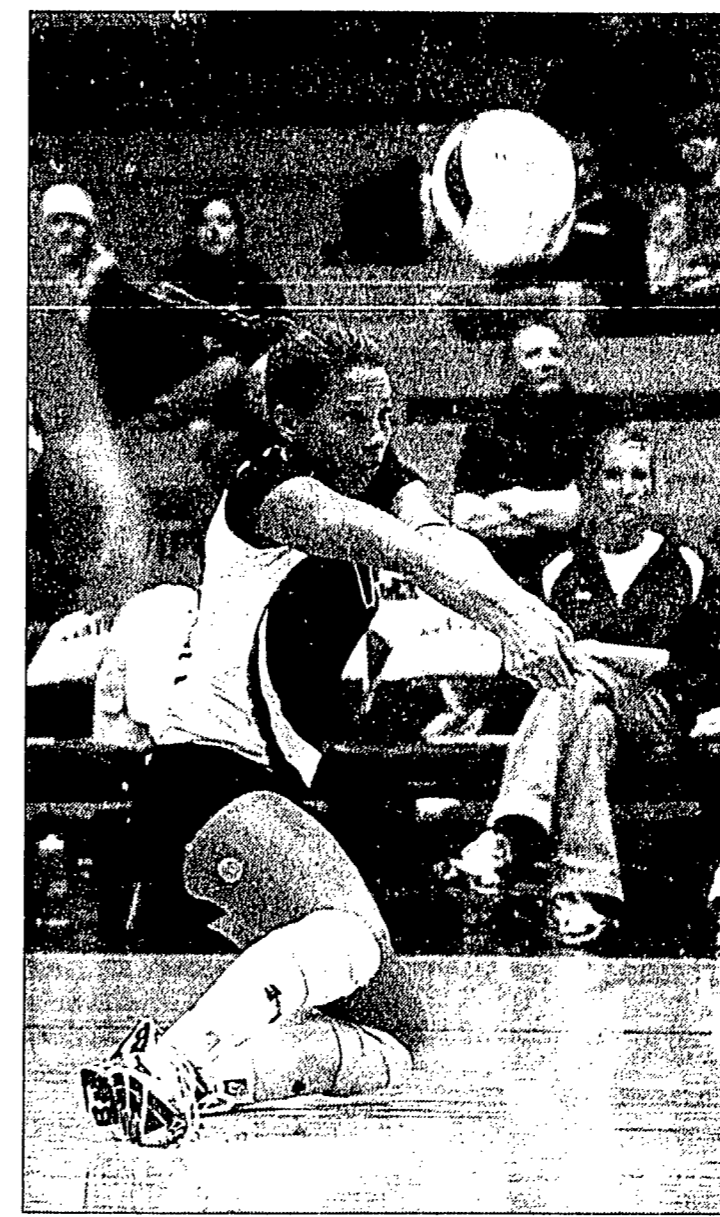

"They're a very scrappy defensive team (Central) and they stay with it and they don't let it up," Tool said.

Northwest nearly had Central beat in the second game. With the 'Cats and Jennies tied at 29-29, Andrea Robertson had two consecutive kills to give Central the win. Freshman Priscilla Bremer led with six kills, along with 20 assists from Hankins.

"We had a game point opportunity and just didn't capitalize on it," Tool said. "It just proves to you how much, when you have that chance, you can't let it slip away."

Coming out of the half, the 'Cats took it to the Jennies for a 30-17 win in the third game. Northwest also posted their highest attack percentage of the night with a .405 mark.

Runners can't compete with stiff competition

Sam Robinson
Missourian Reporter

On a flat course and with virtually no wind, one could not envision a better opportunity.

But with the exception of one runner's All-Conference performance, the Northwest cross-country teams fell victim to stiff competition at Saturday's MIAA Conference Championships at Southwest Baptist University.

Senior Matt Pohren's fifth place result headlined the afternoon for the men's team who finished fifth overall while the women's group finished in eighth place.

Pohren ran the 8K in 24:58.75 for a personal best and earned his second consecutive All-Conference honor as he took sixth in 2005.

Men's coach Richard Alsop, felt pleased with Pohren's showing, while he could have been followed more closely by his teammates.

"We didn't have a mediocre day but we had three or four people who could have finished packed up with our number one man," Alsop said.

The men's team faced an uphill battle in running without senior Drew Wilson, an All-Conference performer from a season ago. They got some production from juniors Brandon Dart and Bishok Deng, who finished 21st and 23rd respectively in a field of 71. Dart, Deng and the remaining six runners each notched personal record times.

On the women's side the meet did not go as well with the team finishing in last place. The team sent a very raw group to the meet with no seniors and only one junior and saw the majority of their runners finish near the bottom.

Women's coach Scott Lorek saw his young squad get intimidated early on and never recover.

"We didn't deal with the mental things well at all," Lorek said. "Stress, pressure, that kind of mental intensity but it was nothing physical at all.

We just shot ourselves in the foot mentally."

The two most experienced runners the team: sophomore Anna O'Brien and junior Karah Spader finished much closer to the top of the pack. O'Brien, who has first place finish to her credit this season, finished in 18th place while Spader followed closely in 21st.

"It was a pretty intense meet being one of the best conferences in the nation," Spader said. "It was really stressful for a lot of the freshmen and we probably put too much emphasis on this meet and as a team we didn't run the best that we could. You have to make mistakes in order to learn something and we learned a lot from that meet and I think we'll be ready for regionals."

Both of Saturday's team title went to Missouri Southern State University. The Bearcats have this weekend off then send their best seven runners to the NCAA regionals in Warrensburg.

Back to back road games prepare 'Hounds

Nate Gonner
Missourian Reporter

There was nothing like back-to-back road matches against conference opponents to get the Maryville High School boys' soccer team ready for districts.

On Tuesday, Maryville traveled to Cameron to take on the winless Dragons. Maryville would take the game over quickly and they never let go of control.

Fueled by five first half goals and two different hat tricks, Maryville cruised to an 8-0 win. Head coach Stuart Collins was impressed by how his team moved the ball up the field.

"I really thought our team passed well today," Collins said. "They kept the passes short and they took some really good shots today."

Colby Stiens and John Rodgers scored a combine six goals, three a piece.

On Monday Maryville traveled to St. Joseph to take on the Lafayette Fighting Irish. Lead by four second half goals, Lafayette grabbed a 4-2 victory.

Maryville had the momentum early in the match as Steven Scheffe would score the first goal in the 19th minute as the Spoofhounds went up 1-0 at half. Momentum quickly shifted in the second half when no more than eight minutes into the half Lafayette scored on a penalty kick. Just a minute later Lafayette would take the lead.

Maryville would answer the goal but that would be the last of the scoring for the 'Hounds as the Fighting Irish would put in two more goals in the half.

Scheffe scored both goals for the 'Hounds.

Collins said his team had chances to score but just couldn't get the ball in the net. "We had great ball control all during the game and we got the ball close to the net on a number of occasions but we just never seem to finish," Collins said.

Maryville (6-11-2, 3-3 MEC) concludes their regular season today at 4 p.m. against Savannah at Donaldson Park in Maryville. Saturday, Maryville opens Class 1 District 8 play at 4:30 p.m. against St. Pius X in Kansas City. The District 8 playoffs are hosted by Pembroke Hill High School.

Stiens is uncertain about how well Maryville will do against St. Pius.

"We aren't sure yet how we are going to do because we will be possible be missing one or two starters but I think we will be able to pull through," Stiens said.

'Hounds drop district opener

Brett Barger
Assistant Sports Editor

From last week's game until the end of the third quarter on Friday night, the Maryville high school football team had been turnover-free.

Things drastically changed at the 'Hound Pound in the fourth quarter of their Class 2, District 16 opener against Lawson.

After recovering a fumble deep in Maryville territory, Lawson scored the go-ahead touchdown early into the quarter and hung on for a 15-7 victory.

"We just got to quit turning the dang ball over," Maryville head coach Chris Holt said. "You just can't do it."

Tied at 7-7 in the fourth quarter, Maryville quarterback Andy Walter, scrambling towards the sidelines, had the ball knocked out of his hands at Maryville's own 12-yard line. After a Lawson recovery and an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty against Maryville, Lawson (6-2) took over from the Spoofhounds 6-yard line. Two plays later, Ramon Addison ran the ball in for a 3-yard score with 11:07 left in the game. Todd Hughson added a two-point conversion to go in front 15-7.

"When our offense turns the ball over on the (12-yard line), it's pretty damn tough to stop an offense like that," Maryville linebacker Tyler Oglesby said.

After punting on their next possession, Maryville (2-6) on third-and-one, drew a pass interference call. With a fresh set of downs on the Lawson 44-yard line, Maryville got down to the 35-yard line. On fourth-and-one, running back Adam Mattson fumbled the ball, which traveled 3 yards ahead of him.

Maryville nearly got the ball back, but Lawson scooped it up to end the drive with less than five minutes left in the game. Mattson finished the game with 14 carries for 76 yards.

The 'Hounds were without Malcolm Swinford, who was out with a hamstring injury.

"It really hurt on our play-calling," Holt said. "West so much stuff up with Swinny and Matty (Adam Mattson). We still had opportunities to make plays. It hurts, but we can't use that as an excuse."

Maryville led at halftime, 7-0.

Walter, who hadn't scored a touchdown since Sept. 15 against Benton, capped a 13-play, 78-yard drive with a 5-yard touchdown run with 3:27 left in the half. The drive was nearly stopped twice. Walter, in the motion of passing, had the ball knocked out of his hand, which Lawson recovered. However, it was ruled as an incomplete pass. Mattson also helped convert a fourth-and-five on a trick play with a 36-yard run. The defense did its job, stopping a Lawson drive, one-yard short of the goal line as time expired in the first half.

On Maryville's final drive with the 'Hounds bogged down in their own territory, Walter's pass was intercepted, which put an end to the game. With Lawson fans chanting "KCI, KCI," referring to the conference that the Cardinals play in, Maryville's chances at a district championship became a lot slimmer, with the 'Hounds traveling to Plattsburg next Friday.

"Our fate is no longer in our hands," Oglesby said. "It lies with (Bishop) LeBlond and the other two teams (Lawson and Plattsburg)."

Cardinals eliminate 'Hounds in districts

Scott Levine
Missourian reporter

After registering a 25-22 victory in the first game, Maryville's high school volleyball team seemed poised for a district win Monday.

The Spoofhounds built an 11-3 lead in the second game, before things took a turn for the worse.

Benton rattled off consecutive points notching the score at 15 points in the second game according to Maryville coach Lori Klaus.

"They tied it at 15-15 and then it was back and forth for the rest of the game," Klaus said.

Both teams traded leads until Benton dusted off a 30-28 victory.

Benton and Maryville exchanged leads again in the third game, but the Cardinals prevailed 25-23.

Benton coach, Kurt Dikkut, was pleased with his team's effort.

"It was a total team effort," Dikkut said. "Everything seemed to fall into place and I credit the entire team."

With the win, Benton moved to the district's second-round match with Savannah.

Dikkut said he wasn't worried about being behind in the second game and credited the victory to his team's ability to keeping the ball alive.

"Well the first game was close, and the girls refused to give up our season," Dikkut said. "As long as you can nickel and dime them, there should be enough time to make a move. We weren't panic-stricken."

"We played smart and hustled. We just made their team pass the ball and made them earn their points."

Klaus said inexperience and communication hurt the 'Hounds during the match.

Maryville featured two players with district experience as all three seniors were on JV last year.

"This was a district game and it just has a different feel," Klaus said. "We had this feeling that we had to win to this game or our season was over and only two players have had that kind of experience."

Seniors Rachel Jobe, Kristen Carmichael and Mandy Seivits graduate this year and Klaus expects much more experience next year.

Jayne Mattson notched eight kills for the 'Hounds, while Jenn Seipel dished out 22 assists.

Megan Cooper registered three blocks.

Charmelle Starling and Chelsie Strong led Benton with eight kills as Shannon Hedden delivered 13 assists.

"Next year we should have a lot of the same players," Klaus said. "We'll move up some girls and should have a lot of experience."

Maryville finished the season with a 9-20 record, while Benton improved to 7-19-2.

we're probably out of it."

Currently, Maryville sits in third place in Class 2, District 16, ahead of Plattsburg because of the point differential in both games. Should Maryville win Friday, they will need LeBlond to upset Lawson to keep them in the playoff race.

"We don't ever want to have to rely on help, but that's what you got to do," Holt said.

The 'Hounds offense will also need to put up some points if they are to get into a tiebreaker. Maryville was without Malcolm Swinford last Friday, who was out with a hamstring injury. Swinford is second in rushing and receiving for the team. Swinford's status for Friday is unknown. Along with Adam Mattson, they are near the top in the MEC among dual running backs.

The defense has held steady, giving up 18 points in their last two games. Unfortunately, the offense has scored 7 points or fewer in four of the last five games. During that stretch, they were also shut out against Platte County and scored 10 points against Cameron.

"It's pretty frustrating, but it's week nine, you got to start putting points on the board," Maryville linebacker Tyler Oglesby said. "We still have two more weeks of improvement and we just got to build on it."

Lawson and Maryville share some of the same offensive struggles. Entering Friday, the Tigers are averaging 19.9 points per game, while the defense gives up 17.6 points per game. Up until the 21 point loss to LeBlond, Plattsburg consistently put up 20 or more points in their previous four games.

"Our kids have got to stay focused and come out and beat Plattsburg," Holt said.

The game begins at 7 p.m. in Plattsburg.

What's your horoscope?

Today's Birthday (10-26-06)

The money comes and goes all year, sometimes in big chunks. Practice your frugality and you'll get by just fine.

To get the advantage, check the day's rating: 10 is the easiest day, 0 the most challenging.

Aries (March 21-April 19)

Today is a 7 — This whole month has been about learning to be cautious, practical and secretive where money is concerned. Hopefully, you know pretty well how to do those things by now. Continue to practice.

Taurus (April 20-May 20)

Today is a 7 — Don't be the first one out over the mine field. Send something mechanical and dispensable instead. The smarter you are, the less pain you'll suffer.

Gemini (May 21-June 21)

Today is a 6 — Try not to let your emotions cloud your thinking, if you can. Make sure your partner knows what you want, and what you definitely don't.

Cancer (June 22-July 22)

Today is an 8 — Temptations are intense, but you don't have to turn them all down. Set up a date for after the work is done.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22)

Today is a 7 — The very best kind of love, as you know, is built around commitment. You're not afraid of that. Be patient if your loved one is.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Today is a 7 — Squabbles may break out but don't let yourself be distracted. The others only see what's on the surface. You're after more than that.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

Today is a 6 — The subject to study now is shopping, and how to do it well. This does not mean you get to buy two of everything you like, however.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

Today is an 8 — Patience is one of your virtues, as is a steady sort of calm. Be like that with somebody who's quite annoying now.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

Today is a 7 — Every time you turn around, there's something else to finish. Your brains feel scrambled but that's just a new idea bubbling up from beneath.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Today is a 7 — If you find yourself facing a stack of unpaid bills, crank up your money machine again. There's no shortage of lucre out there.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

Today is a 6 — You advance imperceptibly for many years, then burst through into a completely new universe. Bon voyage.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20)

Today is a 7 — Keeping your word is a habit that's worth building. It gets easier the longer you do it, and you become more successful, too.

Your Man hates the weather

I understand that for the planet's sake the seasons must change but—what about my feelings?

Why can't Mother Nature, just once, honor my wishes? I am sick and tired of this Missouri weather nonsense. One day the weather can be picture perfect, 70 degrees with a slight breeze, and next, become soul-crushing low intensity long duration rain with all the warmth of a refrigerator.

Going to an eight-o'clock class was never so painful. Just before I make my way to these classes, I pause before opening the doors and stare at the fate Mother Nature has condemned me with.

Thanks to the cold weather, as I walk to class, I feel as if my legs are encased in mud. When I arrive to class, my condition is wet, short of breath, (constricted lungs), and shaking. One would be surprised at how easy it is to appear to be a drug addict, going through withdrawal.

Undesirably, due to my exposure to these elements, I have now become attached to my dorm room. On rare occasions, however, extreme weather follows me to the dorm.

For some inexplicable reason, the temperature indoors will be like a sauna or freezer. At this point, Missouri weather has gone too far.

I will tolerate the walk to class; I will also let the weather have a pardon when my social outings are affected—even when Homecoming is slightly tainted. But, when Mother Nature pushes me around in my living quarters, we (that is to say, Mother Nature and I) have problems. The real crotch-kicker is: it is futile to fight back. Unfortunately, whatever damage I can inflict upon this opponent is also reflected on myself. This is not visa versa though. So, in order to be comforted, I cry myself to sleep at night.

Perhaps my refusal to accept the weather is a tad extreme, and maybe I should rethink the whole situation on the quest to find something positive about this weather. Oh, who am I kidding—that's like saying I will start tipping the pizza delivery men/women.

It will never happen.

The Stroller has been a tradition since 1918 and does not reflect the views of The Northwest Missourian.

Making fun of Halloween

Dave Barry
McClatchy Newspapers

I love Halloween. It reminds me of my happy childhood days as a student at Wampus Elementary School in Armonk, N.Y., when we youngsters used to celebrate Halloween by making decorations out of construction paper and that white paste that you could eat.

This is also how we celebrated Columbus Day, Washington's Birthday, Lincoln's Birthday, Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter, New Year's, Valentine's Day, Mother's Day, Father's Day, Armistice Day, Flag Day, Arbor Day, Thursday, etc. We brought these decorations home to our parents, who by federal law were required to attach them to the refrigerator with magnets.

That was a wonderful, carefree time in which to be a youngster or construction-paper salesperson. But it all ended suddenly one day. I'll never forget it...when the Soviet Union launched the first satellite, called "Sputnik" (which is Russian for "Little Spout").

Immediately, all the grown-ups in America became hysterical about losing the Space Race, which led to a paranoid insecurity about our educational system, expressed in anguished newspaper headlines asking, "WHY AREN'T OUR KIDS LEARNING IN SCHOOL?" I wanted to answer, "BECAUSE ALL WE EVER DO IS MAKE DECORATIONS OUT OF CONSTRUCTION PAPER," but I couldn't, because my mouth was full of paste.

But getting back to Halloween: It's still one of the most fun holidays of the year, as well as one of the most traditional, tracing its origins back more than 2,000 years to the Druids, an ancient religious cult that constructed Stonehenge as well as most of the public toilets in England.

The Druids believed that one night each year, at the end of October, the souls of the dead returned to the world of the living and roamed from house to house costumed as Power Rangers.

And thus it is that to this day, youngsters come to our door on Halloween night shouting, "Trick or treat!" According to tradition, if we don't give the youngsters a treat, their parents will sue us.

That's why most of us traditionally prepare for Halloween by going to the supermarket and purchasing approximately eight metric tons of miniature candy bars, which we dump into a big bowl by the door, ready to hand out to the hordes of trick-or-treaters.

The irony, of course, is that there are no hordes of trick-or-treaters, not anymore. We in the news media make darned sure of that.

Every year we publish dozens of helpful consumer-advice articles, cheerfully reminding parents of the dangers posed by traffic, perverts, poisoned candy and many other Halloween hazards that parents would never think of

if we didn't remind them ("Have fun, but remember that this year more than 17,000 Americans will die bobbing for apples").

The result is that many children aren't allowed to go trick-or-treating, and the ones who are allowed out come to your house no later than 4:30 p.m., wearing reflective tape on their Power Rangers costumes, and trailed at close range by their parents, who watch you suspiciously and regard whatever candy you hand out as though it were unsolicited mail from the Unabomber.

So for most of Halloween, your doorknob is quiet. This means that you pass the long night alone, hour after hour, just you and the miniature candy bars.

After a while they start calling seductively to you from their bowl in their squeaky little voices.

"Hey, Big Boy!" they call.

"We're going to waste over here!" As the evening wears on they become increasingly bawdy. Eventually they crawl across the floor, climb up your body, unwrap themselves and force themselves bodily into your mouth.

There's no use hiding in the bathroom, because they'll just crawl under the door and tie you up with dental floss and threaten to squeeze toothpaste in your eye unless you eat them.

At least that's what they do to me. By the end of the night, my blood has the same sugar content as Yoo-Hoo.

Hindu: Not just a religion, more than a lifestyle

He isn't Buddhist.
He isn't Muslim.
He was born in India and practices Hindu, one of the oldest religions.

However, it is also one the most misunderstood religions. As a result, followers of the Hindu religion have dealt with a lot of misconceptions and stereotypes.

For example, Northwest Student Ayan Daftari, 25, president of the Indian Student Association, was in a liquor store when a customer made terrorist comments about other Indian customers wearing turbans.

Daftari said he experienced people calling a group of Indians terrorists before in Kansas City. He said people assume since he practices Hindu that he is Buddhist or even Muslim because some people believe they are the same religion.

Despite misconceptions, Northwest students, who follow Hinduism, still continue to practice.

Northwest students Sudhamsh Mahankali and Naveen Kodam, both 23 and roommates, practice Hinduism in their apartment. Mahankali prays every day before 8 a.m. In the corner of their living room is a wooden shelf with pictures of the different gods they worship and a small book with prayers.

Mahankali said he prays every morning after taking a bath because they must be clean, with clean clothes before each person prays separately.

Though he doesn't pray everyday like Mahankali or Kodam, Daftari said he says a 30-second chant as a prayer that he has known since he was little.

What is Hinduism?

Hinduism is a body of religion, philosophy and culture native to India, characterized by a belief in reincarnation and a supreme being of many forms, according to the American Heritage Dictionary.

There are several theories of how Hinduism came to be. One of which says Hinduism came from the Vedic religion of ancient India. All the different divisions of Hinduism relate back to this religion, according to Answers.com, a Web site designed for researching information.

Of all the Vedas, there is one book that is the most important, Daftari said, which is the Bhagavad-Gita. The book consists of information about the gods.

Hinduism, Buddhism and Muslim are different in several aspects. Hinduism wasn't founded by a prophet as Buddhism and Islam were. Buddhism was created by the prophet Buddha and the Islam religion was founded by the prophet Muhammad, Omsakthi.org, a Web site that defines differences between the major world religions.

Hinduism is similar to Christianity in the sense that there are different divisions of the religion. Christianity is divided into faiths such as Baptist, Catholics and Methodist. Hinduism is divided the same way.

Hinduism has several Gods with their own specific task, Mahankali said. There are several other gods but there are three gods that are the most important, Brahma, Shiva and Vishnu.

Brahma is the creator, Vishnu is the keeper and protector of the world and Shiva is the destroyer of evil. There are reincarnations of the three main gods as well as other gods in Hinduism, Daftari said.

In Hinduism, animals are considered holy. The cow is considered holy and also a goddess. Mahankali said animals are equal to human beings.

meat at all and to live off vegetables.

Daftari said he tried beef for the first time when he came to the United States and thought it tasted funny. He eats seafood, chicken, pork and sometimes beef.

Indian Culture

People in India are taught English in kindergarten but also learn Hindi, the national language of India, in their studies, Daftari said. Telugu, Marathi, Kannada, Tamil and Gujarati are some of the languages spoken in India.

Though Hindi is the national language, English is either taught as a primary or secondary language because of the education system brought to India, Daftari said.

Daftari speaks English, Arabic, Hindi, Marathi, Gujarati, Punjabi and Kashmiri. Mahankali speaks English, Hindi and Telugu.

Growing up Daftari said, his parents spoke to him 80 percent of the time in English and the other 20 percent in Marathi.

"English and Hindi have an equal place in India," Daftari said.

Kodam said he hasn't had any problems in the United States dealing with Hinduism. He said he likes the government in the United States because it is easier to contact people in the government.

He said you would either have to have a connection to the Indian government to talk to a government official.

People in India follow a more collective approach, always working together, Daftari said, and he has noticed people in the United States are more individualistic.

"We people of India have picked up the good parts of western culture," Daftari said.

Some of the good points of western culture that India has picked up, Daftari said, is the sense of independence especially from parents. But a negative point, he said, is the fact that children who are independent are around to help care for their parents when they are older.

Mahankali said he has a lot of respect for the western culture and doesn't know of a place on the Northwest campus where people practice Hinduism.

Daftari said there isn't a difference between practicing Hinduism in India or the United States because of the temples spread out throughout the United States.

Though some sources say said Hinduism is more of a lifestyle than a religion, Mahankali and Kodam disagree.

"It's a religion but looks like a lifestyle," Kodam said.

Daftari believes that Hinduism is a lifestyle and not a religion due to some of the aspects of Hinduism, like yoga and karma.

He said he tries to focus on the spiritual level of Hinduism, living life by the belief of karma, which means whatever you put into a situation, is what you get out of it, Daftari said.

Hindu gods doesn't give messages to its' followers but shows a way for people to live their life, Daftari said.

ISA will be hosting an authentic Indian dinner from 6 to 9:30 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 18, in the J.W. Jones Student Union Ballroom. Tickets will be going on sale Nov. 6. Ticket prices vary and can be picked up at the Student Services Desk or by an ISA member.

Festivals

■There are several festivals dealing with the Hindu religion: Dussehra, Pongal, Rakhi, Ganesh Chaturthi, and Diwali, Mahankali said.

■Diwali means festival of lights and ended Saturday, Oct. 21. The festival symbolizes the victory of good against evil. The story behind Diwali, Daftari said, in ancient India an Indian hero named Rama married a beautiful princess that was abducted by evil. Rama finds her therefore good overpowered evil.

■The festival is celebrated in India with new clothes, Mahankali said with each festival they must have new clothes, fireworks and clay lamps lit and placed outside homes on the street.
